McGill Completes Radar Equipment

Defense Research Board To Continue Study

After two years of research a group of McGill scientists, headed by Prof. H. G. I. Watson, have come up with an invention which is expected to reduce costs of North American radar defence and at the same time provide more effective defence to, not only Canada, but the entire North American continent.

The radar defence, called the McGill Fence, has now been turned over to the Defence Research Board of Canada for further study.

Research into the device has been going on during the past two years at the Eaton Laboratory and research laboratories of RCA Victor Co., Ltd. No mention of its characteristics has as yet been made except to say that it belongs in the category of radar devices.

Along with Prof. Watson others included in the project were Prof. E. R. Pounder and Prof. G. A. Wootton, director of the Eaton Electronics Research Laboratory.

RELIABILITY, ECONOMY
When asked about the application of the project Prof. Wootton stated: "In its design the primary objectives were reliability, simplicity and low cost. Trials up to the present seem to indicate that these have been achieved."

"The McGill fence does not in any way compete with the Lincoln project. It is decided to incorporate it in the continental defence system it will take its place along with other types of equipment as part of the integrated whole."

Prof. Wootton went on to give his opinion of Russia's knowledge on the subject of radar defence. Said he: "During the last two months I have spent a lot of time reading Russian technical journals. They have some extremely good theoretical and practical physicists there and their fundamental knowledge is as good as ours."

RUSSIA CAPABLE
"I have no knowledge of Russian defence plans, but they certainly have the men capable of working out defence equipment such as we have."

The fence will be used primarily to give early warning against approaching enemy aircraft. Dr. F. Cyril James, when asked why the device has been so named answered: "Well, a fence is something you put up to keep wandering cattle out, isn't it?"

Editors To Tour Russia

Ithaca, N.Y.—(Exchange) Three college newspaper editors have penetrated the Iron Curtain and are currently travelling in Russia with unrestricted travel permits.

Zander Hollander, former Feature Editor of the Michigan Daily, Mark Edmond, former editor of the University of Colorado Daily and Daniel Berger, editor of the Oberlin College Review landed in Moscow last Monday. Previously seven college editors had applied to the Russian Embassy in Washington for visas.

On Aug. 31, I. Savchenko, chief Russian Consul, granted the seven permission to travel freely in the Soviet Union. But four of the group decided not to go.

The three visitors to Russia, who reportedly received a friendly reception there, expect to peer as deeply into Russian life as their hosts will allow.

The three adventurous editors will finance their trip by writing newspaper and magazine accounts of their experience.

Maurice Samuel To Open Lecture Series At Hillel

Mr. Maurice Samuel, noted author and lecturer, will introduce the lecture-series of the Hillel Foundation on Tuesday Evening, October 6th, at 8 p.m. at Hillel House. Mr. Samuel will speak on "The Meaning of Jewish History", an interpretation of the pattern of ideas represented by has devoted the major part of his talents as writer and lecturer to the interpretation and transmission of the Jewish heritage. His major interests have been expressed in three areas, the Jewish State in the making and in realization; the Yiddish-speaking civilization of Europe and its living influence on all Jewry; and the social and ideological relations between Jew and Gentile.

Among his works are "You Gentiles", "The Great Hatred", "Harvest in the Desert", "The World of Shalom Aleichem", and "Web of Lucifer". His most recent work published last year is entitled "The Devil That Failed", which Mr. Samuel characterizes as "A symbolic thriller with a lesson for every man".

All students are invited to attend the lecture forum.

Freshman Daily Staffers Meet Tuesday

"Calling all Freshmen! Calling all Freshmen!"

Are you interested in working on the oldest college daily in the Commonwealth? Would you like to see your name in 10 p.m. Metro-black under the head of a featured front page article? Do you want to join the "best frat of the campus"? These are yours for the asking by joining the staff of your McGill Daily.

A meeting of all interested freshmen and others who are not Daily staffers as yet will be held tomorrow at 1 o'clock in the New Clubroom of the Union. Previous experience in newspaper work is unnecessary.

A staff of over 100 students is needed to publish the Daily regularly. Every fall, scores of Freshmen attend the introductory lectures of the Press Club and learn through practice how a regular daily newspaper ticks.

Dance In Gym To Follow OAC Tilt

After the contest between Ontario Agricultural College and the Redmen there will be a Dance in the Currie Gym. The admission is one dollar a person and music is being provided by the Westernaires, a band well known in McGill.

Trevor Bishop, who is in charge of the affair, extends to every student and their friends a cordial invitation on behalf of the Red and White Committee, and promises a really enjoyable evening.

DAILY PUBLICITY

The Daily has prepared letters of information and regulations with regard to publicity for all campus clubs. These letters are at the tuck shop and all publicity managers are asked to pick them up at the earliest possible date.

The information contained in these letters is very important if clubs desire publicity in The Daily. Cooperation of the managers will be greatly appreciated.

US College Daily Refuses Political Ad

With "virtually no opposition," according to the Michigan Daily, the national convention of Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity meeting in Miami, Fla., earlier this month eliminated from its constitution a "bias clause" that restricted membership to Jewish students only.

The vote on the convention floor was 125-14.

The constitution was amended to read that "any student" may join the fraternity. Previously the constitution had stated that "any Jewish student" might enroll.

Although the official announcement of this action has not yet been released from the fraternity's national headquarters in New York City, Martin Abramson, 54th president of the Cornell chapter of Sigma Alpha Mu, issued the following statement:

"The Cornell Chapter of Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity, after having spearheaded the movement to remove its selective membership requirement during the past years, views the removal of this clause with much approval and satisfaction."

"It is our opinion that this decision by our national convention will prove to be a benefit not only to Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity but also to the fraternity world in general."

Various Topics Discussed By A & S Executive

At the first Arts and Science Undergraduate Society executive meeting of the year, held yesterday afternoon in the Union, matters of interest in all fields which concern Arts and Science activities were discussed.

Don Stirling, president of the organization, presided at the meeting and first brought up the topic of the Arts and Science debating team. It was announced that the team will be travelling to various universities as part of the debating competition for the year.

The ASUS News, which was distributed at registration, will be published again shortly, Stirling stated.

He then went on to stress the need for intramural talent. Without this, he added, many Arts and Science teams will be forced to defeat by default in various sports. Lists have been posted on the notice board of the Arts Building and enthusiasts are asked to please sign up. Volunteers are wanted for tennis, golf, softball and touch football.

There are three departments: features, news and sports, and newcomers are free to choose the department in which they are most interested. Registration for new staffers will take place at tomorrow's meeting, and so it is imperative that all prospective staffers attend.

Convocation Tuesday

Tynedale Hall to Open On Founder's Day

The formal opening of the Redpath Library Extension by the Principal, Dr. Cyril James, on October 6th, will mark the beginning of the ceremonies which take place annually on Founder's Day.

Founder's Day commemorates the birthday of James McGill who bequeathed his Burnside estate and 10,000 pounds to the Royal Institute for the Advancement of Learning to found McGill University. This day is set aside every year for the Fall Convocation.

Dr. James will open the library at 12:05 and unveil the plaque in the entrance hall as well as the statue of The Falcon, by the late R. Tait McKenzie, who was associated, during his lifetime with the Department of Physical Education at McGill. The statue was presented to the University by the generosity of an anonymous benefactor.

GUARD OF HONOUR

At 2:30 the Canadian Grenadier Guards will mount a Guard of Honour at the tomb of James McGill. This event has special significance as the founder of the University himself served as Honorary Colonel of the regiment.

At 3:30, the Chancellor B.C. Gardner will be accompanied by Vice-Chancellor and Principal Cyril James as he inspects the

DAILY QUESTIONNAIRES

As of last night, 246 filled out questionnaires had been received of the 3,800 given out by The Daily; they were turned in as follows:

Science:	87
Arts:	72
Engineering:	50
Commerce:	27
Architecture:	2
Partial:	2
Law:	1
Unidentified:	5

Today again, ballot boxes will be placed in the Lobby of the Arts Building (beside the pile of Dailies), in the Lobby of the Engineering Building, and in the Union.

The editors emphasize that for an accurate survey of campus opinion, many more forms must be turned in.

SEC Offers $5,500. To Assist University

Council Votes Half Of Book Profits Principal Must Approve

About $5,500 has been offered to the University by the Students' Executive Council, with the intention of helping McGill to solve her financial problems resulting from the loss of Federal Aid last spring.

In last Friday's meeting, the SEC voted unanimously to split the Bookstore profits for the year 1952-53 (about $11,000) between the University and the general funds of the Students' Society. Before going into effect, however, the motion must be approved by the Principal — as must all allocations of Bookstore profits, under the ruling of the Board of Governors.

MOTION

The motion reads as follows: "Whereas, in the past, the Bookstore profits for each session have been allocated by the Students' Executive Council for the benefit of the Student Body; but Whereas, McGill University had to cope with a substantial deficit during the past academic session due to the loss of Federal aid; and

Whereas, the Students' Society itself is confronted with unexpected expenditures for the present session due to increased costs including the McGill Daily; and

Whereas, the Students' Executive Council feels that every effort made to aid the University in the present emergency would directly benefit the students generally, but must at the same time consider its own financial problems;

Be it resolved that the Bookstore profits for the session of 1952-53 be distributed as follows:

1. One half of the said profits to McGill University to be used as the administration sees fit in helping to solve, even in a small way, the financial problems sustained through the loss of Federal Aid.

2. One half to the Students' Society of McGill University to help offset the above mentioned unexpected increased costs for the present session."

McGill, together with other universities in Quebec, lost their federal grants when the Provincial Government refused to accept such grants last February. The previous year, McGill had received $615,270 as its share of the grant.

In response to this action, in order to help solve the resulting financial problems, fees in all faculties except agriculture were raised $50 for this session.

COMMISSION

The matter of federal grants has since been referred to the Quebec Commission on Provincial Rights — set up last year, McGill has been asked to present a brief to this Commission, and it will be ready by some time in November.

Revue Seeks Talent For Latest Production

Potential showgirls and hams are being sought by the executive of the Red and White Revue for this year's production. Because this year's Revue differs in type from those of past years, a great diversity of talent is needed.

This year's show will be a musical revue, with a general theme tying up the different acts. There will not be as rigid a script as in the past, therefore more and better talent is needed.

Last year's Revue was a book script show, with all acts derived from the theme. It was closer to a musical comedy than this year's show will be.

LESS REHEARSALS

The general effect of this year's production will be that students may participate in one particular act only. This will cut rehearsals for any one individual considerably. The same will apply to all stage and technical crew. Consequently students, who last year were not able to work on the Revue because of lack of time, will now be able to participate. Many more students will be needed because of the concentration of one group to one act.

The script is in its final stages. A variety of people are working on it. Chairman of the group is Bernie Rothman.

The music for the Revue is also nearly completed. Composing lyrics and words are Howard Bacal, Eric Moldel, Irwin Brown, Bernie Rothman, and others.

MANY ROLES

Students are reminded that character roles are numerous, and must be chosen from various representative groups on the campus. There is a place in the show for almost anyone interested.

A member of the executive has asserted the show beneficial to participants in two ways. "Besides the excitement of doing the show, we of the Revue, are placing an accent on musical comedy education. This will be achieved by a director and a choreographer, both being very competent and well-known."

Photographers Needed

Last year "Old McGill" tried for the first time having student photographers covering all campus events. This experiment was such a success that, this policy is being continued this year. More photographers are needed according to Phil Bieler, Photography Editor to give an even wider coverage of student activities. Positions are open for a limited number of keen and energetic camera-wise students. Phil will be interviewing candidates at the Annual Office in the basement of the Students' Union from 4:00 to 6:00 pm on Thursday.

LOST
An orange-brown checkered sportjacket containing important keys in a leather holder was lost last night at the Union Open House. Would the finder please turn it in to George at the Union Tuck Shop.

Shaugnessy Stars in Union Open House

By RUTH DICKSTEIN

The Union Ballroom was filled to capacity last night, where McGill's first star, The McGill Union Open House, was held. There were an estimated 600 present. Many more were turned away at the door.

Ed Garber, known at McGill for his versatility, opened the show. His act consisted of bass playing and comic acts.

STAR ATTRACTION

Michael Shaugnessy, currently at the Downbeat, was the star attraction of the show. Amid a rowdy, beer drinking crowd, Shaugnessy managed to run through a terrific diversified program.

The audience was entertained by Shaugnessy's great repertoire of jokes and songs. They were taken to the bank, to the movies, and finally to Ireland, A serious and nostalgic monologue of a Irish son leaving his home to join the service led into Shaugnessy's famous rendition of "Danny Boy". Shaugnessy closed his act on that note.

A fine exhibition of the Charleston by Kathy Alexakis and Cecil Palmer followed. Whistles and shouts came from the male audience as the girls came out in purple costumes of the flapper era — hip waistline, knee length skirts and stockings rolled at the knees.

GAMEROFF, M.C.
Marv Gameroff, M.C. of the show, so liked the girls' act that he called on two volunteers from the audience to Charleston with them. The fellows' prowess in that flapper dance proved surprising.

Three girls from CKVL Radio Station were next on the program. The row created as they came on made it impossible for them to sing. An intermission of about ten minutes followed, during which the audience was able to quiet down.

The girls went on to sing, much to the audience's appreciation. Ross Campbell, McGill's own baritone, gave renditions of "Old Man River", "I've Plenty of Nothing" and others.

Howie "Rubber Legs" Bell, with two different partners, put on a dance exhibition. His jitterbug and Mambo were highly appreciated by the audience.

Mr. Goodyear accompanied at the piano for most of the performances.

Canadian Colleges Increase Facilities

Manitoba, Toronto, Sir George Boast New Buildings

Old McGill is not the only Canadian university that is undergoing a period of campus modernization through the construction of sleek and modern buildings.

The big new library of the University of Manitoba was opened for use during the summer school session; it will receive official recognition at special ceremonies this Saturday night.

Although primarily a library for the campus, the building also has additional features of use to the university. An exhibition centre for art and similar displays takes up a large part of the south end of the building. Adjoining it is a miniature theatre, in which various films will be shown. There is also a lounge where students may come to read or talk. The basement of the building is being utilized for the storage of stage props and other university property.

To speed up the obtaining of special books two main divisions have been made in the library section: one division will handle regulation books, while the other will be concerned with reference books. Four librarians will be in charge of the reference section.

Honors students and others working on research projects will have the added convenience of the hundred-odd cubicles arranged around the walls. Those in the faculty doing research have been provided with sixteen larger cubicles in a separate room.

Two kitchens are also a part of the structure; one is for the use of the staff, the other is for the serving of lunches during receptions and similar occasions.

An increased staff has been hired to handle the 160,000 volumes spread over three floors on more than five miles of steel shelves.

University of Toronto

The former School of Pharmacy has officially become the University Faculty of Pharmacy at the University of Toronto. The University now takes over the teaching of pharmacy, but the Ontario College of Pharmacy still exists as the licensing body for the pharmacists in the province.

Having the full support of the Dean of Pharmacy, F.N. Hughes, the establishment of the new Faculty in the University has been called "a definite milestone in the advancement of pharmacy in Ontario."

The construction of the "Pill Palace" is the culmination of many years of negotiations between the College of Pharmacy and the University.

Sir George Williams

Of interest in Montreal is the new College Building which will be erected by Sir George Williams College. It is expected that everything will be ready to start building in the spring of 1954, possibly on May 1st, and will be ready for occupancy during the early part of 1956. This means that in all probability the Freshman class of 1953-54 will graduate from the new building.

The structure has been designed to accommodate 6000 evening students. It will have larger and well-equipped classrooms and executive offices.

The building will occupy ground from Drummond St. to Stanley St. just below the Y.M.C.A. Building where the College is now situated.

The College part of the fund-raising campaign, involving students, faculty and alumni went greatly over the original goal of $22,000, and is still climbing gradually.

Many Inters to Show In Saturday Game

Three top-notch intermediates will pace the invasion of inter coach Joe Anderson's boys to the senior team Saturday when the Redmen meet OAC Aggies in an exhibition match.

Rickie Adrian, youngest of the football family, Bob Perry, a back from Sudbury, Ont. and Perry Griffiths, another back from Washington and Lee College, should all see plenty of action in the tilt, when Obeck will give the inters plenty of work in preparation for their season opener a week later.

OAC Unknown

Little is known about the OAC team, but their quarterback is supposed to be a high quality player. His name is Wladyka, but since he is billed as the only one, he must be good at everything.

Fraser Kerr and Gerrie are the halfbacks, while Roelofson goes in the fullback slot. Barlow at wingback concludes the backfield.

Brash is at center, flanked by Totten and Whiteside. Stephen and Ralphy are at tackle. Brown and Green give the team a colorful tinge at end.

Obeck plans to dress about 40 men for the game, and they should all be seeing action. Len Shaw will be dressed, but will be kept under wraps so that his knee will be fully mended for the intercollegiate match against Queen's on Oct. 10.

There has been a lot of conroversy lately over Vic Obeck's statement that the Redmen will take the league title, and many arguments, both pro and con, have been going on. Undoubtedly there is much to say in argument, such as the fact that the McGill team has shown no pass offence and little in the way of a defence.

Much Wrong

In addition, their line is supposed to be a lot slower than those of previous years, while there just aren't any ends. The backfield is supposed to have the only portion which compares with anything that has gone by in previous seasons.

Throughout all this it is also to be remembered that the MacFarlanes and Parry are no longer playing for Western, while such luminaries as Bruce Cummings of Toronto are now in the Big Four. None of the colleges this year have come up with teams that will make father forget those power-packed teams.

The Red line still contains many players who were on these so-called McGill powerhouses, and while they may be slow, they still have not been scored on as a result of a sustained ground

Ryan New Coach Of Track Squad

Howie Ryan makes his debut as coach of the McGill varsity track team this fall taking the place of Glen Cowan, who led the team to within five points of winning the championship last year. He has moved his home to Windsor, Ontario.

Howie Ryan is a familiar name around the campus. His record is outstanding as director of Intramural Athletics and his rugged team.

Now Ryan is trying to team into shape for the late meet to be held at Molson Stadium. This has been one of the most colorful and exciting sport's event of the year, with bands and cheerleaders from every school being represented, in a grand sport's spectacle.

The team has lost letterman Laird Sloan and Don Menard who between them managed to collect nearly ten points in the competitions last year. Sloan was awarded a track scholarship to the University of Michigan and Menard, of football fame, has graduated from the school of physical education.

Veteran John King, sprint specialist and this year's team captain, will once again enter the dashes. Intercollegiate champion Dave Winship is back and working hard. Bill Findlay and Lionel Whitman, both of whom were champions last year, will also be with the team this year. Bill won the pole vaulting honors while Lionel beat all entries in the shot put.

Besides these proven performers of former years, a talented freshmen crew is practicing with the squad and promises to bolster Ryan's Redmen. Peter Reid, quarter and half mile runner, looks

Play Starts For Rugby

The McGill intercollegiate rugby squad swings into action Saturday when they meet Westmount Scottish at 11:45 at the Upper Field. As are all games, this is an exhibition match.

Doug Bell, one of the stars in former years, has been missing from practices, and there is much doubt that he will play. There are some holdovers from last year, however, and these include Ken Scott, Mike Landsdowne, Herman Sullivan, Dick Cowan, and Charlie MacMillan.

Some of the newcomers have impressed in workouts, among them Dean McTaggart, Alex Bible, Peter Salzer, Larry Cohen and Lionel Segal, both of whom saw limited action last season, might get into the game too.

The Scottish have a strong squad and have been practicing for three weeks. They expect to do well against the collegians, and last Saturday defeated their sister team, the Westmount Barbarians, by an 8-5 count.

The game will make a nice prologue to the McGill-OAC football clash.

ALWAYS A BRIDESMAID BUT NEVER A BRIDE---WILL IT BE DIFFERENT IN THE 1953 SEASON??

Lack of Form Makes Grid Forecasts Risky

It is with gladness in their hearts and eyes upturned to Molson Stadium, that football-conscious McGill students registered this week. Before the first lectures to upperclassmen have even begun, Vic Obeck's Redmen are loftily perched in first place of the intercollegiate football union with a 13-12 win over the McMaster Marauders.

After last Saturday's game, the only one played up to now in the collegiate loop, the Redmen's stock has risen considerably. Both McGill and McMaster have been picked by various observers to vie with Queen's for the league's cellar while Western and Toronto make merry at the expense of the above three; many of these observers further predicted that the Marauders, on the basis of 22 returning veterans, were just a shade better than the Redmen.

McGill, however, showed a strong ground attack in edging McMaster while the passing left much to be desired. This was also the case when the Redmen drubbed University of British Columbia 22-4 in the Sir Winston Churchill Trophy game a week before.

While McGill has won two games, the mighty Western Mustangs have played two exhibition tilts and lost them both. In its first outing of the season, the London squad was nosed out by Sarnia Imperials of the ORFU by a 14-12 count, and on Saturday the Metrasmen were rudely bounced by the University of Toronto Blues to the tune of 11-1.

From Toronto comes word that coach Bob Masterson has a team of championship calibre this year. Led by highly touted rookie quarterback Eddie Skrypyek and veterans Steve Oneschuk, Al Haig, Bobby Dale, among others, the Blues are out to recover the title from Western. Skrypyek, a pass specialist, has looked impressive with the Blues thus far and looks to have displaced Geekie and Mandryk from the first string signal-caller's role. In their first game this fall, the Blues lost to Toronto Balmy Beach, of the ORFU, 23-16. After the 11-1 rout of Western, however, Varsity is definitely the team to beat.

Meanwhile, from Kingston, came the surprise of the young season over the weekend. The Gaels came up with a fiery display to down Balmy Beach 20-10 a week after the latter had disposed of Toronto Varsity. Queen's who had not been rated highly previously must now be conceded a definite threat.

All of which would seem to point out that predictions in the college loop are risky affairs this fall and prospective oracles had better take care. But many questions will be answered this coming weekend when Queen's plays Toronto and McMaster is host to Western. The Redmen, meanwhile, have an exhibition game on tap against Ontario Agricultural College.

Obeck To Speak At Athletics Preview

By IRWIN LEWIS

The annual freshmen athletics night preview will be held Friday at 8 p.m., in the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium. Staged by the Red and White Committee, its purpose is to acquaint the freshmen and the freshettes, with the athletic facilities at their disposal.

This mass demonstration will enable the newcomers to McGill to see for themselves and ultimately decide what sport they wish to enter, whether it be intramural, intercollegiate (barring senior football) or the required freshman athletic program.

The evenings will get off to a flying start with the co-eds and the fellows being briefed on the present athletic setup. Following this there will be a talk by Vic Obeck, who will later introduce the players on this year's senior football squad.

Following this, freshmen will be taken on a tour of the gym where they will get a glimpse of such activities as squash, fencing, riflery and a swimming display.

Representatives of all the various sports on the campus will be present to discuss with the fresh, their plans for the coming season and to tell them when and where meetings of the particular sports, or team involved, will be held.

The procedure this year is changed from that of previous years. In the past, the co-eds were given their own separate Athletic preview, but this year it was decided to merge the two

Water Polo

All water polo players report to the Memorial Pool at 6 o'clock this afternoon for practice.

Soccer Team Meets RCAF

This season's Intercollegiate soccer team gets its first outing of the current session when the Redmen meet an R.C.A.F. squad tonight at 7 on the Upper Field.

Holdovers from last year's squad include Charlie Meeks, Olaf Must, Noel Watkins, who is also manager, Del McPherson, Seymour Lake, Ted Richardson and Keith Campbell. Newcomers to the club are Alex Balogh, Bob Jordan, Ford, Busby, Stan Patrick and Dave Green.

This team is not definite for the rest of the season's play, but is based on the first impression of freshman coach Brian Cleary. Due to the fact that so many good players, turned out, Coach Cleary had a difficult time bolting them down to the present contingent.

Team practices continue on Friday, and Tuesday will see the club battle the Hungarian Juniors.

McGill awarded its first degree, conferred by the Faculty of Medicine, in 1833.

Local Tennis Championships Decide Intercollegiate Team

By LEWIS BATSHAW

The Redmen racket-wielders are off to a fast start this season, with the McGill tennis championships opening on Tuesday, October 6th. The results of these important matches will enable mentor Al Malloy to choose this year's intercollegiate contingent, which will battle in the forthcoming Intercollegiate Championships.

The Red squad's major foes in this event to be held in Toronto, October 14th, 15th and 16th, will be the University of Toronto Blues and the U. of M. Toronto was forced to settle for a tie in the title contest, while U. of M. placed third. However, this year's contingent has been seriously weakened by the loss of three players, who were the backbone of last year's club. Ham and Red Quain, long outstanding performers in the McGill tennis world, will not be competing this season. Since they were ranked one and two respectively, their absence will be sorely felt.

Pete Constable, a vital cog in last fall's play will also be lost to the Redmen. Constable in 1952 gained a valuable clutch win over Don Hurovitz of the Blues, giving the McGill squad a tie for top honours. Chuck MacMillan, intramural champion in 1950, will be out for McGill this season, and should be one of the team mainstays. MacMillan is the holder of the 1952 Western Championship. Pete Walsh, who also showed well in last year's title play should get into the game too.

The Scottish have a strong squad and have been practicing for three weeks. They expect to do well against the collegians, and last Saturday defeated their sister team, the Westmount Barbarians, by an 8-5 count.

Tennis Championship

All those who wish to enter the McGill Tennis championships (not intramural) should register with the court attendant at the McIntyre Courts between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. The match starts Tues. Oct. 6th at the McIntyre courts at 3 p.m. Entries close Mon. Oct. 5th. Selections for the McGill intercollegiate tennis team will be made from the draw. This match is not to be confused with the intramural championships.

known tennis stalwarts as Henri Rochon, one of Canada's Davis Cup players. Freshmen are also eligible to make their bid for the club by entering the championships on Tuesday. Coach Malloy is counting on several freshmen to make out well in this competition.

Swim Practice

The first swimming workout of the season will be held at the Currie Memorial pool at 5:15 this afternoon. For three weeks the team will concentrate on calisthenics. All newcomers are welcome and freshmen are eligible.

McGill Summer Schools Offer Three Courses On Two Campi

By DON ALLEN

It may be "back to school" for most McGill students these days, but in three fields of academic and professional study the main thought is that a term of lectures and classes has recently ended. Close to 400 attended McGill summer schools on the University's two campuses and elsewhere between June and August this year.

Classes beneath the trees, a month without English, and field trips in two countries were highlights of the summer sessions, where a traditional informal atmosphere lends to close teacher-student relations and approaches to instruction and learning at considerable variance with most University procedure, students who attend the special sessions quickly note.

McGill offers summer schools in teaching, geography and French.

Two hundred Quebec teachers, recent graduates of the Macdonald College School for Teachers, this summer returned to College classrooms to complete requirements for professional diplomas. A second large group of students — 117 — enrolled at McGill's unique French Summer School, Douglas Hall. Sixty Canadians and Americans, including 20 U.S. army officers, attended the University's seventh Geography Summer School, held this session at Stanstead College, Stanstead, Que.

A second French summer school — intended for French specialists and regular teachers of the subject — was held at Macdonald College under the jurisdiction of the School for Teachers; stress was placed on the spoken word although formal classes were offered in French Grammar and French Canadian life. French conversational ability was developed through regular meetings of five or six students with an instructor with conversation on a prepared subject. Such meetings were normally arranged beneath the trees of McGill's spacious Ste. Anne de Bellevue campus.

Other teachers headed back to school this summer to the regular Macdonald College School for Teachers summer school, attendance at which is required for one summer session for graduates of the School's Elementary and Intermediate Teaching Diploma winter courses who wish to fulfill requirements for a Department of Protestant Education permanent teaching diploma. The four-week course is under the direction of Professor David C. Munroe, and classes are offered in child psychology, the psychology of learning, and methods of instruction in various subjects.

"Tel on parle Français" is the standing rule at McGill's French Summer School, where students from all parts of the United States and Canada agree on registration to speak only French during classes, at meals, and during recreation periods throughout the four-week session. Only French-language newspapers are permitted in the Douglas Hall residence, the School's summer headquarters, and all lectures are delivered in French. Informal conversational classes are held on the campus. The School has a staff of ten, headed by Professor Jean Launay, Chairman of McGill's Romance Languages Department. Prof. Launay observes that students who take the course are "high school or college students who need French for their course of studies, except to use it in later life, or simply want to speak it". Elementary and advanced instruction is offered.

Located within a mile of the United States border, McGill's Geography Summer School boasts a markedly international tradition: the School's instructors are noted geographers of Canada, the United States and Great Britain. Classes are held at Stanstead College, a co-educational residential institution, otherwise unaffiliated with McGill.

Teachers and military officers accounted for a large proportion of the School's 1953 enrolment. Graduate and undergraduate level courses were offered in the geography of the Arctic, Canada, England, Asia and the Soviet Union, as well as in historical and political geography. Field trips included visits to locations and industries in the Eastern Township and several New England states.

Director of the School was Dr. Bogdan Zaborski, Associate Professor of Geography at McGill and former Director of the Institute of Human Geography, University of Warsaw.

Grillroom Jammed As Bums Bow To Yanks

By ABBY BENJAMIN

If the Union Grillroom yesterday afternoon seemed to resemble the nearest bar — complete with television set and smoky atmosphere — it was not a transfiguration, but rather that annual autumn celebration — the World Series.

For those who might feel that there are benefits in turning the Grillroom into a tavern let their anxieties be calmed, for no matter what atmosphere might prevail in the Grillroom during the next week, normality will return with the final out of the final game.

If yesterday's crowd about the TV set was any indication of what will be occurring for the rest of the series it is suggested that those interested in the Union for reasons other than the baseball series fade from existence and peddle their papers elsewhere for a few days. Anybody, for any reason, not help to and unable to dig the magic of baseball just doesn't belong within the premises right now. One word wrongly spoken will echo through the silent chamber and make the poor speaker feel like a sardine among a bunch of whales.

In order to obtain the necessary research for this document I, a poor, innocent female, ventured to enter the temporarily transferred tavernish television haven. I was thirsty. I wanted a coke. I approached the counter. Correction. I attempted to approach the counter. Further correction. I didn't quite make it. Boys, men, beasts — that's what they were — piled all over the place. Never mind approaching the counter — couldn't even see it. I mumbled a faint excuse me. Fifteen of these monsters glared at poor, little, defenceless me. I was now swallowed up in the crowd and in trying to make my escape another dozen or so of the demons started using the most horrible language. Really, for college students — why, I never. Anyhow, it seems I was blocking their beloved game — some baby called Gilliam was about to hit a home run. Finally I managed to escape from the place. My experience has made me a martyr to the entire female population of McGill.

Need For Engineers Continually Expanding

From the Royal Bank of Canada monthly letter

Canada's need for engineers is expanding constantly, says Dr. L. Austin Wright, General Secretary of the Engineering Institute of Canada. Not only does industry keep increasing its needs, and the armed services their demands, but opportunity is opening new doors. Many small industries that never before used engineers are finding that they can get better results, and can meet competition more successfully, when they employ engineers.

30 YEARS AGO

The situation was different 30 years ago. Dr. Wright's predecessor in the Engineering Institute of Canada told the Montreal branch in 1923 that the profession "is overcrowded, and becoming more so every year." He went so far as to advise youths to seek other outlets for their energies.

Today graduating engineers are eagerly sought. One company numbers 350 graduate engineers among its 8,500 employees.

GOV'T JOBS

There are many openings in the government service. More than fifty per cent of the professional staff of the National Research Council and the Atomic Energy Control Board are engineers, and somewhat about 75 per cent of their budget is spent on applied science or engineering development work. When you move over into government departments which are charged with the practical application of discoveries made through research, the importance of engineers is seen again: there are more than 5,000 technically trained engineers in the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys; more than 250 architects and engineers in the Department of Public Works; and, of course, proportionate numbers in the departments of Transport and Resources and Development.

USHERS

It has been announced that ushers are required to assist the Scarlet Key at the football games. Freshmen, especially, and upper classmen too, interested in the position are asked to report to the lecture room of the gym at 12:45 pm this Saturday. Scarlet Key members are to report at 12:30. Ushers will wear red and white sweaters and will receive free admission to the games.

the local level, and then on the national.

TRAVEL, EXCHANGE

In order to promote the growth of friendship and understanding among students of various countries, the IUS sponsors a number of programs. International summer and winter camps have not giving ample opportunities to discuss different aspects of student life. Meetings of students in similar faculties in their universities have been successful in bringing together students to exchange opinions and experiences on methods of study, on the content of the textbooks, and so on.

YOUTH FESTIVALS

Every two years, students meet together in the World Festivals of Youth and Students, in the organization of which the IUS participates together with other youth and student organizations. The most recent of these was held in Bucharest in August of this year.

This is only a short survey of what the IUS is doing in the world today. It is a young organization and recognizes that there is still much room for the improvement and development of its work.

Its handbook, "This is the IUS" ends with, "Of course there must be differences of opinion in an organization whose members come from such vastly varied backgrounds. There may be difficulties too, but given a spirit of tolerance and good will they can be readily solved."

HILLEL

Observance of the closing days of the Religious Festival of the Tabernacles will be celebrated at Hillel on Thursday and Friday, October 1st and 2nd. There will be services in the Hillel House Chapel at 3460 Stanley Street at 12:10 pm followed by a luncheon at 1 pm.

Many Inters ...

Percentage OK

The number of passes completed is not large, but neither is the number of passes thrown. The percentage of completions is just as good as any of the other colleges except McMaster, who are masters at the screen pass, always good for a completion.

Their pass defence is the only thing that has shown to disadvantage, but then again, it is next to impossible to guard against the screen. Kosakowski of the Marauders looked very good as a thrower, yet only completed two long ones.

The backfield is their strongest weapon, and cannot be argued against. The Redmen have shown a strong team spirit this year, and morale seems to be higher than it ever was.

The actual potential of the McGill team has still not been shown, but there would seem to be a very good chance that mentor Obek's prediction has a very good chance of coming true.

WUS Secretary Here Will Speak At Union

Mr. Douglas Aitken, the permanent secretary of the International organization of World University Service, arrived here last night. He will speak to McGill students on Friday at 1 pm in the Union.

In this capacity, he is responsible for co-relating the activities of the WUS organizations in 32 countries. As part of his job, he made an extensive tour of 20 countries in Southeast Asia and in the Middle East in the first three months of this year.

ASIAN COLLEGES

Commenting on the universities he had seen in these countries, he noted that in the former British Colonies, the old system of university teaching established by the British was still in effect, though a revolution has been taking place since independence. In these countries, English is still the language used.

In Indonesia, however, where virtually no universities existed previously, a whole new system is being built up from the ground up. Textbooks are slowly being translated from other languages into Indonesian.

Although the need is greatest for technicians, engineers and such men, Mr. Aitken said that the vast majority of students were in Fine Arts. This he attributed to the lack of equipment and other training materials. The governments of these countries, he explained, while invariably giving some direct financial support to the universities, had too many other things which required their attention and their money.

Mr. Aitken will be in Montreal for two days, and will speak to students of both McGill and the University of Montreal.
